In this article, I would like to share with you the difficulties that many young English learners may have, mainly in conversation, and how to overcome this difficulty.

Key words: Native speaker, methods, grammar, listening, reading, course, English atmosphere.

What is the main problem? - The main problem is that young people learn English grammar and say, "I have finished learning English." This idea is completely wrong. They will have completed only one unit of English. They still need to learn listening, speaking, and comprehension. When studying these sections, they get stuck when it comes to speaking. So why? - There are many reasons. Let's list 5 of them. 1. They may not have an English environment. For example, you live in Uzbekistan. Uzbek-speaking people and writings in Uzbek are around you. You may find it difficult to speak English in such an environment. That is why people who live abroad, that is, in countries where the state language is English, speak English rapidly. 2. When speaking in English in front of people, they are afraid that they will be embarrassed or censored. For example: in an English course the teacher can ask the question "What do you think the main goal of living in the world is?" . That is, "What is the main purpose of living in the world?", the student can answer, with sufficient vocabulary and grammar. But he is afraid of the opinion of the people around him and just says "I don't have any ideas". 3. Students memorize complex, artistic words for speaking. However, native speakers talk simply and simply during communication. Also, we can tell you that English language movies, music and books, most importantly, the non-existence of our expatriate English friends, is a very sad situation for students studying English. We may not live in a country where English is the official language, but we all know that English is the language of the world. While we are speaking in English, we need to speak freely and without fear of making mistakes. It is true that we may make some pronunciation mistakes or grammatical errors in the use of words in our first speech, but this is not a reason to remain silent. It is a pity that the level of speaking is not developing. Why are we afraid that the words we say are not pronounced correctly? It is no exaggeration to say that this is one of the main problems. Many of our young people who are learning English have such problems. In addition, the complex words memorized by the students become part of the passive vocabulary, and as a result, they will never be able to use such words in conversation. 4. Another problem is that they can't easily form a sentence in their head. That is, they spend a long time trying to form a grammatical sentence in their brain. For example, ordinary friends try to make a complex grammatical sentence in a conversation to prove their knowledge of the English language. As a result, the original meaning of the sentence is violated. Or others struggle to form even a simple sentence in their brain. And he writes down what he wants to say in a notebook, corrects it, and then joins the conversation. 5. Another reason students struggle is because they don't listen. That is, it would be much easier to learn English in the same way that we learned to speak Uzbek by listening. Another problem we have in speaking is that we develop only 1 skill and neglect other skills. For example, we complain that my listening is not good, but I need to learn more, and we try to play other skills. This causes our remaining skill levels to weaken.

When it comes to speaking, there are countless problems related to it. I think it would be right if we start solving these problems from ourselves first, because if everyone would correct themselves, the number of people who have difficulty with speaking would be reduced. I think one of the reasons why we can't speak freely in speaking is because we can't divide our day properly. This is definitely my opinion. So what I mean is that we should practice something in speaking every day. These daily practices can solve many speaking problems

So what is the solution to this? Most importantly, never hesitate to speak your mind in the language you are learning. Don't be afraid that someone will notice your mistakes and tell you. If you recognize your mistakes and work on them more, you can correct your speech. But if you are afraid of mistakes, you will only make more mistakes. Having at least one friend who speaks the language you are learning will greatly help you practice the language.

According to the studies, "shadowing" and "read aloud" methods provide the most benefits to language learners. The method of shadowing is to find the speech of a native speaker on social networks and repeat every word of it. You need to copy not only the words of the speaker, but also the manner of speaking. This will help you improve your pronunciation and make your speech more beautiful. In the next method, when you are reading any article or book, read your voice a little louder. This will help you connect words to form sentences faster.

By using these techniques and practicing more, your speech will soon be beautiful, correct and fast.

Another solution is that the learner should spend most of his time in an English language environment. That is, he should spend more time listening to English audios or English movies or simply participating in English conversations. Or simply reading a book in English will improve his pronunciation and comprehension significantly. If our vocabulary is good, we can talk freely and we would have no difficulty in understanding what our interlocutor is saying. It is difficult to memorize the correct words. It will take some time, but I think it can be done.

I want to tell you one way. For example, we should write the words that we have trouble memorizing on pieces of paper and hang them in places where we look at them every day.

Another way, for example, if we have trouble memorizing a word, we should try to make sentences using it. Only then we can understand the words easily and quickly.

Conclusion:

In conclusion, if you can fully apply these methods, you will be able to speak English like a native speaker.
