Abstract

In this article, the activity of helping young people to acquire the necessary skills for the implementation of their constitutional rights and civic duties, active education of conscious respect for the state and legislation, which are national and civil democratic values in our country, is discussed in practice today. It is justified that it gives the result.

Keywords: politics, neighborhood, youth, independent opinion, political activity, society, outlook, social life, culture.

The most important issue facing our country today is the work being done to increase the young generation, its education and social and political activity. In fact, in our country, great attention is paid to the implementation of the social and legal foundations of the state policy on youth. Commenting on this, President Shavkat Mirziyoyev emphasizes the following: "Whatever programs and plans we adopt in our country, we take into account the interests of our youth, who are our hope and future" [1].

Today, the role of young people in the relations between the state and society is significantly increasing. The task of modernizing our country, liberalizing socio-economic and political spheres of our society, deciding and developing new approaches to the role of youth in society and state life has become the subject of today's debate. At this point, before making a structural-functional analysis of youth participation in political processes, it is appropriate to define the concept of political process. The political process is the way a society's political system works; the total activity of political subjects, thereby ensuring the functioning and development of the political system [3]. The concept of political process means a movement with a certain direction, a consistent exchange of situations, a unity of activities aimed at achieving a certain result. Also, the concept of the political process, in turn, is a chain of political situations and events with an internal connection, a unity of mutual relations of actions of political subjects aimed at power [4].

The political process consists of political institutions and political subjects related to the political life of society, power and state power, and is considered as an important direction and criterion in studying the participation of young people in political processes and is analyzed structurally and functionally.

The fact that in the development model chosen by Uzbekistan, great attention is paid to the issue of youth at the state level, assuming that their activity is important in the political processes taking place in our country, it shows that the relevance of the political analysis of the problem of youth employment is directly related to the following aspects. They are related to the demographic situation of our country. Because Uzbekistan is one of the countries with a young population in the world. The average age of the population of Uzbekistan is 24 years. At the threshold of the 21st century, it allows the majority of people who are characterized by high labor activity and professional training. In our country, where young people make up such a large segment of the population, the implementation of work to strengthen independence falls more on the responsibility of young people, and the progress of today's democratic changes, the fate of the initiated reforms will depend on the spiritual outlook, potential, and cultural level of young people. Political institutions, state and non-state organizations, the public, family, community, and every citizen are entrusted with the responsibility of raising a generation that is healthy in all respects, worthy of their great ancestors, with high intellectual potential, and patriotic young people who are loyal to the ideals of independence, in the current period of intensified ideological struggles, it is determined by the youth's engagement in specific targeted activities and their compliance with national independence ideas.

This approach involves preventing young people from falling under the influence of various extremist groups, involving them in political processes, and working directly with them. Currently, some negative situations, inappropriate actions, and evil deeds are happening primarily because of the ideological gap. because young people who do not yet have life experience, who have not yet recognized black and white, are susceptible to various influences, which means ensuring their employment in accordance with the democratic changes taking place in the country. This shows the need to analyze this issue from a political and social point of view. Employment and social stability are interrelated and mutually influencing categories. On the one hand, work activity increases the source of income for a person to satisfy his material and spiritual needs, through work, people unite in mutual activities, common interests form an environment of mutual understanding and social harmony among them. To the extent that employment is well provided in the country, it has a positive effect on social stability.

Head of our state Shavkat Mirziyoyev said, "Another important issue that always worries us is related to the manners, behavior, and, in a word, worldview of our youth. Today, times are changing rapidly. Young people feel these changes more than anyone else. Let the youth be in harmony with the demands of their time. But at the same time, don't forget your identity. May the call of who we are and the descendants of great people always resonate in their hearts and encourage them to stay true to themselves. How can we achieve this? It is not for nothing that they say that education, education and only education" [2].

The state supports the economic, socio-political activity and independence of young people. No strata of the society is left out in the implementation of the state policy on youth.

The newly revised laws of the Republic of Uzbekistan "On State Policy Regarding Youth" and "On Education", presidential decrees and decisions in the field of youth affairs, and the development of state policy regarding youth in Uzbekistan until 2025 the concept of educating our young people based on modern standards is gaining importance in bringing out their talents.
