

INTERPRETATION OF LEADING MOTIVATION AND IMAGES IN A FAIRY TALE

Mirzayeva Gulmira Bahodirovna

Senior Lecturer at Yeosu Technical Institute

Annotation

This article discusses the role of fairy tales in the upbringing of children and the formation of their consciousness, the level of importance, the age-related nature of fairy tales and the various effects of fairy tales.

Keywords: Fairy tale, upbringing, need, character, hero

"The book is the basis of all creativity, ingenuity, knowledge, a coach who teaches life." This is the description of the book by our great entrepreneur Amir Temur. It is impossible to imagine our life without the priceless wealth, the great miracle of intellect. Because the book is a unique key to the light of the world, the light that illuminates the dark path. Our grandparents have always paid great attention to the upbringing of children. They did their best to encourage our sons and daughters to read books, to tell each other interesting stories, legends and fairy tales, so that they could grow up to be happy and our grandchildren to grow up to be useful people. Because in fairy tales good ideas are glorified, and in the end they end with good and victory over evil. Now that we adults are a little indifferent, for some reason we are too lazy to tell a story. Many "modern" mothers try to "shut their mouths" by watching various cartoons, phone and computer games, claiming that they do not have time to relax.

Is that true of a person who wonders? How important is it to tell a story to a child? Looking for answers to these questions, it is becoming increasingly clear that in today's era of globalization, instead of encouraging the younger generation to become addicted to information and communication technologies and encouraging them to read, we are creating the conditions for this. It should be noted that the period from 1 to 3 years is a very important and delicate period in the upbringing of children. Whether his parents are the best people or the worst - an unwritten piece of paper, an unfinished epic. Your child, who has just learned to speak, will startle you by asking questions. This period is very important. Unfortunately, many young mothers are tired of this situation and misbehave. In such a situation, the child is afraid to ask for something and learn. Remember, your little one is very energetic and active. Every day new words appear and grow in his dictionary. That's when you quickly learn what you teach your child. There is a need for story games. If you play the role of the fairy tales you told at that time, it will be useful. The fairy tale gives the child an idea of life, helps to distinguish between good and bad, teaches ways to get out of difficult situations. Through the story, your child will understand the norms of interaction with others, possible problems and obstacles.

It teaches your child to overcome difficulties, to solve problems, to hope that the event will end with goodness, justice and love. Because in a fairy tale there are limitless possibilities that your child can't use in practice, but can imagine. Remember, wasn't Hamid Olimjon's "Spring Singer" the reason for his mother's fairy tales? The fairy tale is characterized by the positive aspects of the child's behavior, such as lying, rudeness, malice, theft, laziness, crying, fear, such as honesty, gentleness, kindness, cleanliness, diligence, Effectively helps to turn the feelings of courage and bravery. The fairy tale has an effective effect not only on the inner world and upbringing of the child, but also on the elimination of speech defects, such as stuttering (logonevrosis).

It is important that the storyteller is so skilled that he can convince the child of a miracle in real life. In general, the benefits of a fairy tale are many: - through it the listener does not face such a painful situation as admitting his faults and mistakes, without fear becomes an interesting fairy tale hero, solves the problem, draws conclusions from the fairy tale; - The fairy tale creates such a protective environment for children, through which the child has the opportunity to receive any news about himself and his world without fear of interference from the inner world; - When a child hears a fairy tale, he compares himself with the heroes, chooses heroes close to his character, does not feel lonely among his fears and experiences; - Most importantly, hearing the heroes of fairy tales overcome difficulties, invigorates their thoughts, gives them the experience to solve problems and self-confidence. Another important feature of the fairy tale is that the weak and unlucky hero becomes a strong, smart, brave and lucky winner at the end of the fairy tale.

These changes cause the child to try to improve. He always knows that "Irkut duck" will one day become a beautiful swan, and he tries to move forward without fear of difficulties. When a child develops work skills, he or she will be able to work on his or her own without waiting for his or her parents or adults to show up. Life is like this: whoever works hard without entrepreneurship, lives a healthy, prosperous life, lives without humiliation. The ant is not boastful, it is simple and straightforward. It is distinguished by these qualities. In the questions and answers, ants are superior to ice, clouds, sun, rain, earth, grass, cattle, wolves, snipers, and mice. It is good that the main part of the fairy tales recommended for children of this age are works that express ideas such as honesty, integrity, non-deception. Take, for example, the Turkmen folk tale "The Honest Child." The fairy tale is very simple and straightforward. But its meaning and content, its educational value is very strong. But in it there are many things that can be an example for the little ones. In the fairy tale the grandfather's diligence is obvious. The grandfather works day and night on the turnip, sweating. hard work is praised. Second, the child should grow up to be friendly with those around him. .The story of pulling the big turnip out of the ground and pulling it out h Very interesting for the reader. Grandparents, grandchildren, puppies, cats, mice move their heads from one side to the other. This situation is a great pleasure for children. The fairy tale serves to form the notion that power is in unity in the little ones.

List of used Literature

1. M.E. Zufarova. General Psychology, Textbook. Toshkent 2010
2. Abdumannotov A. Navoi on child etiquette. / Primary Education, 1996
3. Munavvarov A. Pedagogy. -T .: Teacher, 1996
4. Yusupova P. Pedagogy of preschool education: Faculty of preschool education of pedagogical institutes. For students. –T .: Teacher, 1993
5. Zunnunov A. Excerpts from the development of pedagogical thought in Central Asia. - T .: «Fan», 1996